

--29. The data collecting and recording computer system of claim 28 wherein each of said plurality of portable keyboardless computers further comprises means for uploading data to said host computer.--

--30. The data collecting and recording computer system of claim 28 wherein wherein said libraries comprise:

a sequential library of possible responses configured for display by said input/output device in selected one of said formats;

a consequential library of one of a plurality of actions and executable instructions associated with said possible responses for changing the flow of said downloaded task specific application program while executing in said processor;
and

a syntax library for changing the syntax of the information displayed by said input/output device.--

IN THE ABSTRACT:

Please insert the abstract attached on the separate sheet of paper.